State Transportation Systems Governance and Funding Models

Transportation Governance and Funding Task Force

June 14, 2017

Office of Legislative Research and General Counsel

The Organizational Structure of Transportation Departments is Unique to Every State

- There are three basic "models" of system governance in the U.S.
- Functional Organization
 - Most Common
- Modal Organization
 - Less Common
- Hybrid Organization
 - Combination of Functional and Modal

Key Terms

- "Mode"
 - Means by which people and goods move
 - Highways
 - Personal automobiles, freight trucks
 - ► Transit
 - Buses, light rail, commuter rail
 - ► Rail
 - Freight
 - Aviation
 - Passenger, cargo
 - Water
 - Ports, waterways
 - Active
 - Walking, bicycles

- "Function"
 - Specific operational duty
 - Finance
 - Planning
 - Administration
 - Operations
 - Maintenance
 - Engineering

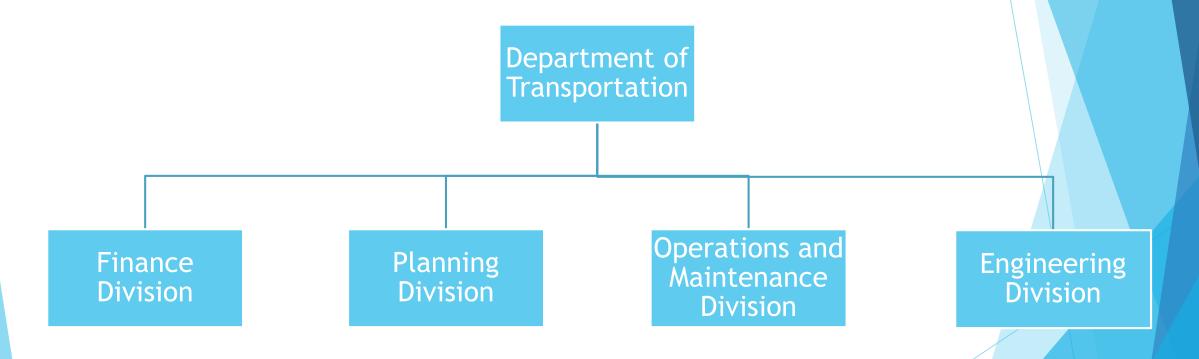

Functional Organization

- A single department governing one major mode
 - Functional divisions within the agency
- Different modes are governed independently by different agencies
 - Agencies could be other state-level agencies, or municipality or local district-level agencies (transit agencies)
- No overarching "umbrella" department overseeing all modes

Functional Organization

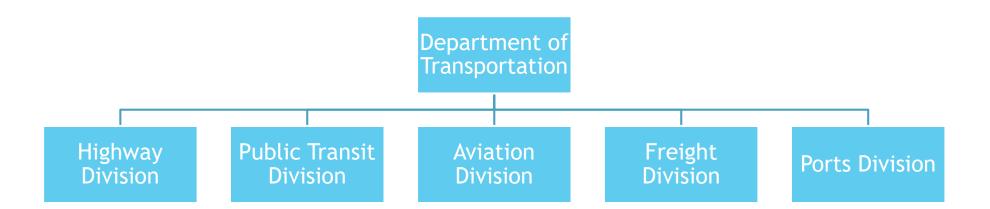

Modal Organization

- A department governing several modes
- Divisions within primary department are responsible for a single mode
 - Functional organization within division
- The primary department acts as an "umbrella," with oversight over each modal division

Modal Organization

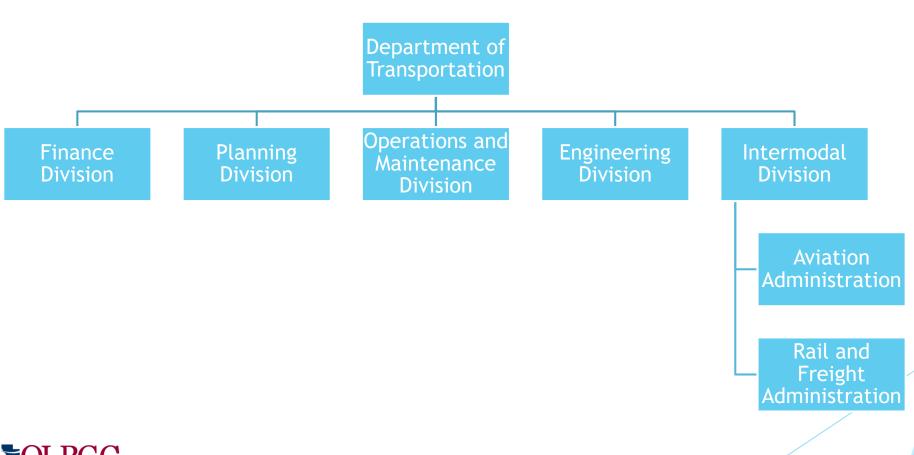

Hybrid Organization

- An agency organized primarily by function, but also governing two or more modes
- ► No umbrella agency overseeing all modes

Public Transit Funding and Governance

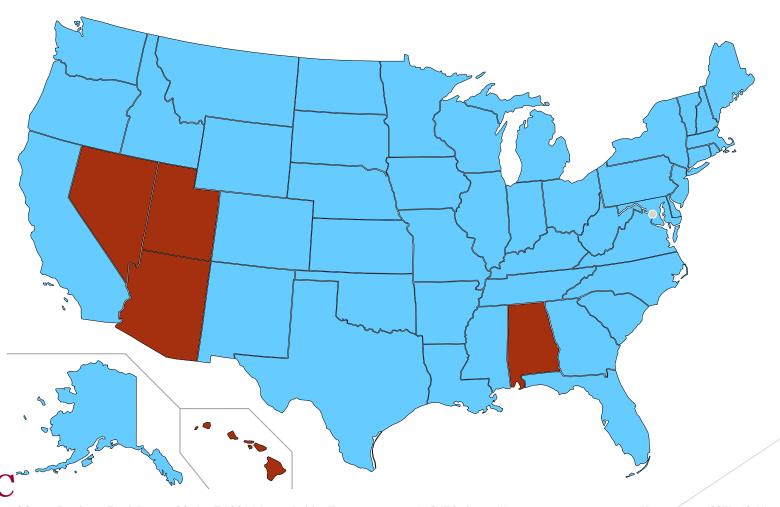

Public Transit System Funding

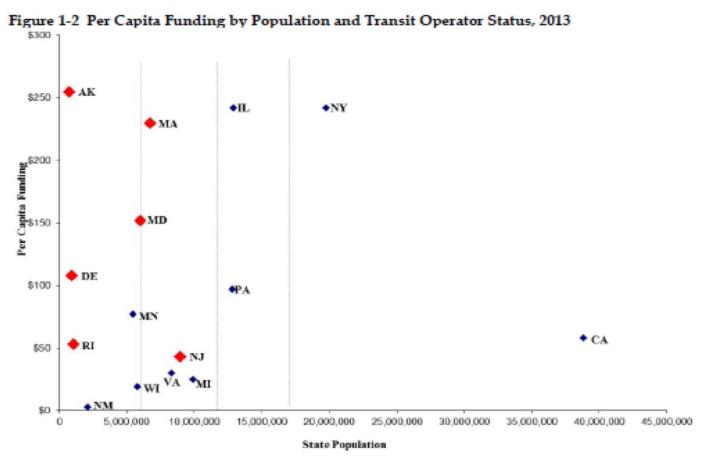

- ▶ All but five states provide direct funding for public transit (FY14)
 - Alabama
 - Arizona
 - Hawaii
 - Nevada
 - ▶ Utah
- ▶ There are a variety of funding mechanisms utilized by states to fund public transit, including:
 - Sales tax
 - Gas tax
 - Vehicle registration fees
 - General Fund
 - Transportation Fund
 - Bonding

Utah

- While Utah does not directly appropriate state funds to public transit, the state authorizes a city or county to impose local option sales taxes to fund a system for public transit
- ► A city or county can impose up to four local option sales tax increments totaling up to 1.05%
 - Revenue from each of these sales tax increments is partially, or entirely, devoted to public transit
 - Most local option sales taxes must be approved by a majority vote of the legislative body and registered voters before the city or county may impose the tax

Local Transit Funding Sources

Public Transit System Governance Models

- ▶ State transit agency A transit agency created by a state government, with transit operations owned, funded, and managed by the state.
- General purpose transit authority or district A transit authority, usually with an accompanying funding mechanism, created through the joint approval of leaders and voters in multiple local jurisdictions under state law. In this case, the state law allows the establishment of a "general purpose" authority, separate from local government, by local action.
- Special purpose regional transit authority or district Created by a special act of the state legislature, and applying only to a specific, single region of the state. This is the most common transit governance model for larger urban areas. (UTA)(CVTD)
- Municipal transit agency Assumption of transit services by an existing local government, without special state legislation, as one part of its municipal functions. This is the most common governance model, particularly among small transit agencies and in small and mid-sized urban areas. (Park City, SunTrans, Cedar Area Transportation Service)
- ▶ Joint exercise of powers or joint powers authority Agreements between two or more existing local governments to create a new transit agency by jointly exercising the powers they each have to build or operate transit.
